Better Sleep

A cue, not a perfect night

The National Heart, Lung, and Blood Institute discusses sleep as a health topic. People need different amounts, and this page does not assign you one. It also does not promise that tonight will go well.

- Keep a wake time you can manage on most days.
- Dim one light in the evening if a brighter room keeps you alert.
- If caffeine late in the day keeps you awake, try it earlier. There is no single cutoff hour for every person.
- A short wind-down can be washing your face, reading a paper page, or sitting quietly.

When sleep is a medical question

Pain, breathing pauses, restless legs, or a mood problem that will not lift belongs with a clinician. If you are in immediate distress in the United States, call or text 988.
